A warm and comprehensive child-centered approach to early childhood education Who Am I in the Lives of Children? An Introduction to Early Childhood Education presents a constructivist approach to early childhood education (birth to grade 3) and care programs that is dedicated to the development of the whole child—physical, social, emotional, and intellectual. With its practical orientation; personal voice; appealing photographs, videos, authentic children’s classroom work; and engaging stories, it allows readers to visualize effective classroom practices. Aspiring educators are encouraged to learn about each child’s strengths, interests, and challenges. This understanding, coupled with contemporary, research-based information, inspires readers to support each child’s growth and learning in ways that are in harmony with who they are, rather than according to a predetermined plan. Rented this book for my ECE 1A class. The book was in good condition, normal wear and tear, but no issue too big as to cause a problem reading it. We ended up not using the book very much for the class so I am glad I was able to rent it instead of buy it. When we did use it the content of the book was helpful, and well laid out. I liked the index it made it easier to find things like activity plan examples, and running record examples. All in all it was a good text book.

Got this for a child development class. This book was well written and informative. It's in easy-to-understand language and gave real life examples to help grasp concepts.

as expected.

good

I purchased the used loose leaf version. I was not happy at first glance of my book in a random messy pile held together by a rubber band. Once I got it into a binder I was happier, there were very few ripped pages, just several bent. The book lined up perfectly with my Edec 1001 class at Ohio university. Overall, the book did its job.

Amazing book for parents, nannies, and teachers.

It's a school book, but I am fascinated by what I am learning from it.

Used this book for my intro to ECE class! This is where the passion for young children's education began for me!
