Customer Reviews

"150+ Screen-Free Activities for Kids will take you back to a time before Minecraft when giggles didn't require an iTunes password. Chock-full of brilliant but simple ideas, this is a must-have for parents." --Bunmi Laditan, founder of TheHonestToddler.com and author of The Honest Toddler: A Child's Guide to Parenting "This book will help you and your child reconnect with each other, with the world, and with the present." --Dr. Michael Rich, "The Mediatrixian," founder and director, Center on Media and Child Health, Boston Children's Hospital "The sticky, soapy, bubbly world of 150+ Screen-Free Activities for Kids is absolutely magical. We go bananas for the creativity that oozes from the original projects that Asia creates!" --Rachel Faucett, founder of

HandmadeCharlotte.com and mother of five" "Asia Citro's ideas are fresh and fun, and most important to me, always good for thinking, discovering, exploring and creating. This book is a top choice for parents who want their kids to discover the world through their own hands-on experiences." " " " " --MaryAnn F. Kohl, bestselling author of over 20 children's art books" "The more important an activity is for living and learning, the more senses are involved. 150+ Screen-Free Activities for Kids offers simple, attractive, hands-on experiences that integrate many senses, inviting kids to touch and move, see and hear, smell and taste. All children--especially those with sensory processing issues and other special needs--will joyfully get "in sync" with these fun and functional activities!" " " " " --Carol Kranowitz, bestselling author of The Out-of-Sync Child" "Something I'm seeing more and more frequently these days is a toddler or young child intensely focused on a screen he is holding. I want to gently take it from his hands and say, "Look up, child! Look at the world around you! That's where life is." That's what Asia is doing: a smart, educated mom who understands what her kids really need and does her best to give it to them. Along the way, through her blog and this book, she is inspiring others to do the same." " " " " --Trish Kuffner, bestselling author of " " The Toddler's Busy Book and The Preschooler's Busy Book" "Technology has certainly come a long way in providing kid-friendly programs that capture the attention of today's children but in order to build lasting knowledge about their world, young children need to use all of their senses. Asia has put together a brilliant book of simple ideas that will not only capture the attention of young children, but will also foster critical developmental skills as they use all of their senses to explore, imagine, and create through real world, meaningful, hands-on experiences." " " " " --Deborah J. Stewart, " " TeachPreschool.org and " " Ready for Kindergarten!" "Citro's activities are like nothing we've ever seen before. They combine colors, smells, tastes, and textures that would be irresistible for any child." --Ashton Kutcher, Aplus.com" "With the irresistible fun in...150+ Screen-Free Activities for Kids kids...will be clamoring to get their hands on paint and slime instead of the TV remote. If you're looking for the perfect present...pick [it] up." --Seattle's Child Magazine" "150+ Screen-Free Activities for Kids is a book by Asia Citro that tries to bolster parents' arsenals in the war against screen time by providing a number of simple but fun projects that parents and kids can enjoy together. If you have the time and energy to give even one of these activities a try every week, you'll be doing both your children and yourself a huge favor." --BabyCenter" "150+ Screen-Free Activities for Kids provides easy, step-by-step instructions for creating open-ended activities for babies, toddlers, and older children. Whether you're new to sensory play or just looking for some fresh ideas, 150+ Screen-Free Activities for Kids can help you inspire hours of screen-free fun." --Campaign for a Commercial-Free Childhood" "If you want your kids to enjoy more doing and less watching, get this book." --Boston Mamas"A refreshing and extensive new book...Citro's activities are multi-sensory and wonderful for getting little hands and minds going, and her book is a great reminder to parents that creating a stimulating exploratory environment for our kids can be inexpensive, simple, and homegrown." --Inihabitots"Remember childhood before iPads and laptops? It's still there, and it's still fun.... 150+ Screen-Free Activities for Kids offers doable indoor ideas for children's play, using easily acquired materials." - The Chicago Tribune

Asia Citro has an M.Ed in Science Education and was a classroom science teacher for many years before deciding to stay home full time after the birth of her daughter. She lives near Seattle with her wonderful husband, two awesome children, and two destructive cats. She started writing Fun at Home with Kids in February of 2013 and has since spent many late nights experimenting with new play recipes, sensory materials, and science experiments. She is the author of 150+ Screen-Free Activities for Kids, The Curious Kid's Science Book, A Little Bit of Dirt, and the chapter book series Zoey and Sassafras. Her work has been featured on Apartment Therapy, The Chicago Tribune, Today, Disney Baby, MSN, King 5 TV, and Highlights, among others. I am an occupational therapist so there were a lot of things in this book I have seen before, it has great recipes for moon sand, paint and doughs . Good book for sensory play, however I was looking for more varied types of activities like crafts and holiday/season specific games or activities. I like how it labels each activity with allergy information and advice of appropriate age for each activity.

I am a toddler teacher at Leafing Preschool and Childcare Center in Kirkland, and last week one of our parents gave us a signed copy of this book to use in our program. I was really excited to see photos that I recognized from scouring the internet for good slime recipes and other sensory activities. There are so many good ideas for preschool teachers and "play-at-home" parents on the internet that it can sometimes get a little overwhelming - every week I find myself falling down a Pinterest rabbit hole as I plan out the next week's curriculum. This book is so well-organized and thorough, that it will definitely replace the internet as my go-to resource for lesson planning. The author understands the need for physical experience in early childhood, and she has compiled an impressive and exciting anthology of ways to engage children's senses while they learn through play. She included a very useful labeling system, which will help us quickly judge whether a project might be appropriate for toddlers, or better left to the big kids who know not to taste-test everything. Lots of the recipes have allergy-friendly or taste-test-friendly alternatives, so I can relax while the little ones are elbows-deep in slime. While I was sitting in the classroom, flipping through this book, a group of children formed around me, all of them excited by what they were seeing on the page, and a few of them kept reaching out to touch the pictures, because the sensory activities are so inviting. I can't really say what I love the most about this book, because the whole thing is so gorgeously laid out, but I really, really, really love the appendix she included with advice for sourcing materials. Each week my biggest lesson-planning challenge becomes figuring out how to make the most of the materials we already have in our program, and how to spend as little time as possible going out and searching for supplies. This book is going to be an incredible addition to our resource shelf, and I've also ordered 3 more copies to give away to my friends with kids. I'm still going to have to get myself a copy at some point, because this is a book that I know I will use, both at work and at home with my daughter, for a long time to come.

Packed full of fun activities. Some suggestions are a bit derivative (the worlds), but nevertheless, we love them. Really helped get me out of a creative rut with my kiddo's activities. We also have "A Little Bit of Dirt" and look forward to doing some of those activities. We've done moon sand, cloud dough, many of the worlds, made the mat and the stage, and generally, had a blast!

This is the all time best book I have ever bought. Every one who comes over and uses it with us ends up ordering one! I bought it for my one year old daughter and three year old son, my son loves to look through it and pick a project and then plays with what we make for over an hour! It has so many baby safe recipes that it's great for all ages. My 9 year old niece even begged her mom to order it after looking though it. It's wonderful!

Fun and creative activities in the book! I wish the layout was a little bit easier to read and not so text heavy but overall I do recommend the book. Once you get passed the beginning of each chapter the steps are laid out and the activities are fun. Some things to do are easier to follow, others are not but fun time for the kids are guaranteed! I liked that there were activites for my 1 year old niece and also my 8 yr old nephew.

Can I give it more stars?! I LOVE this book!!! Not only is it aesthetically pleasing, it's functional! I started using it with my son at around 5 months old and we've both thoroughly enjoyed it! I look forward to the many more projects we will do together.

Great book for mom of toddlers needing activity ideas. I've searched and seen a lot of similar activities on the web and pinterest. But I would always feel overwhelmed by the number of supplies I needed that I didn't have so I would just give up before even starting. What I really liked about this book is that it gives a list of a dozen items to keep stocked which can easily allow you to do at least 50 of the projects. This was a great starting point for me and gave me the confidence to get started. Since getting this book We've done 1-2 activities per day, and now I even come up with my own ideas. My kid has had a blast and I feel like I'm doing my part in keeping my toddler curious and busy.

I ordered this thinking there would be a few cute ideas to do with my daughter. I love this book. There are a ton of cute projects! And at reasonable prices! You don't need a ton for every project. If you get liquid watercolor, you probably have 95% of the rest of the ingredients at your house. My daughter loves when I break this book out because she knows she's going to have a fun day. She loves flipping through the book looking at all the fun pictures picking out what she wants to do.
